Level Definition:

- Munsell:
  - 10YR 6/1
  - Dark Yellowish Brown
- Texture: Ashy
- Soil description (inclusions, other comments): Ashy, many inclusions

Associated Features and Levels:

- Associated with level B in Unit 4
- Which is adjacent with unit C
- Level above: A
- Level below: C

Bag number: 41

Artifacts: Pottery, nails (nyc), brick, ashy inclusions

Interpretation:

- This deposit coincides with the level B in Unit 4
- Which was under the figure board
- This level included much debris, and we are hoping the trench in Unit comes over to Unit 5.

Artifacts:
whiteware, nails, clear glass, green glass, plastic, bottles, glass marbles, wood, brick, copper, pottery
+ a lot of slag/old metal.

Interpretation: Our unit is adjacent to unit 1 which is further than us.
They have found a lot of significant amount of trash/artifacts.
It is my opinion that the previous occupant used this area.
Both units included about a 10 x 10 area as a trash pit. The soil consisted of sandy loam with little to no variation. We found a huge amount of coal here however, in noticing a lack of oyster shells.

Bag number: 33
Artifacts:

Winchester Shell Cartridge casing, marble
A few (10-30) pieces of glass, ceramics
A couple of handfuls of rusted metal nails?

Interpretation:

There is some question as to if this unit contains part of Feature 1?
There is definitely fire on SW corner, layer B was pretty disturbed w/artifacts were not found in context. Much, much, much inclusions of coal & clayments.

Soil texture: Sandy Loam w/ Sandy Clay Lenses
Soil description (inclusions, other comments): small inclusions of coal shreds, large artifacts (included, eggshells, wood, disturbance from original hole)
Feature 3 appears & STP.

Bag number: 417
Artifacts: Broken metal plate, whole glass bottle, several plastic or shell belt buckles

Interpretation: New info seems to suggest Feature 3 may be seep pipe, meaning survey was recent, disturbance patterns don't match idea of Feature 3 being a pit - because large clay deposit near center - perhaps feature is in Unit 1 mostly.  New soil stains indicate trenching? Must dig more.

Artifacts:
Nails, glass pipe stem, pottery sherds

Interpretation:
This level sucked. A. There was nothing here but a few nails and a few sherds of pottery and a piece of glass. We dug a window in the soil to see how much further we would have to go. The sub soil was so much further down that we decided to dig the rest with shovels and then level it off.
