

Thesis and Dissertation Embargo Request

As a condition of graduation, each student's thesis or dissertation must be published. Students may place an embargo of up to two years on electronic access to their document through ProQuest's Digital Dissertations and DRUM without approval from the Graduate School. Approval from The Graduate School is required to place an embargo for a maximum of six years or indefinitely. This form may be used to modify a previous embargo or to submit a new embargo request.

Original date of thesis/diss. submission:

I request that the University of Maryland embargo (restrict) access to the electronic full text of my thesis or dissertation through the Digital Repository at the University of Maryland DRUM for:

☐

Up to Six (6) years*: _____
(# of years)

OR

☒

Indefinitely**

*If your work has already been embargoed for two years, you may only request an additional four-year embargo (6 year-limit).

**Indefinite embargo requests will only be considered if it is in service to the public good (e.g., for national security reasons).

In the space below, provide a strong rationale for your request and the specific amount of embargo time requested.

I am requesting an indefinite embargo to protect the identities of the participants, all of whom are from marginalized backgrounds. Given the relatively tight knit community in which this study was conducted, participants are likely to be identified by those in the community, despite the use of pseudonyms and masking of institution names. As such, limiting the distribution of this dissertation would be in the best interest for participant privacy, especially given their identities and the sensitive nature of the project (i.e., discussing their beliefs surrounding the 2016 Presidential Election)

By signing here, I acknowledge that I have reviewed the options for making my thesis or dissertation publicly available through DRUM and that I have discussed these options with my advisor. I understand that I must contact ProQuest directly (disssub@proquest.com) to modify the embargo in their database.
