RE-ENVISIONING NMRT's Newsletter, Footnotes

What is Footnotes?

The New Members Round Table publishes a quarterly newsletter of featured articles, conference notes, and book reviews.

Who is NMRT?

The purpose of this round table is to help new librarians become involved with ALA and the library profession.

Survey

We conducted a joint survey with Group H as they were studying the New Members Round Table's peer review journal, Endnotes.

Areas of Inquiry

Knowledge of the journal & interests Gauge readership & author interests

Information about the participants

Methodology

The combined survey contained

20 questions

of survey participants had ever read Footnotes.

How did you learn about Footnotes?

Professional Listserv

Library School

Misc.

of those who read Footnotes had written for it.

had published more than once.

The rest had not written again because Footnotes is not widely read.

What writers want

Consistent editor communication

Basic copyediting

Feedback

Increased marketing

What readers want

Featured articles

More visuals

Email subscription

It might be cool to see special issues that are focused on a particular topic.

Participant Suggestion

Unnecessary Confusion

Participants were unsure why the New Members Round Table published two publications with similar names: Footnotes and Endnotes.

Think beyond the publication in terms of publicity. Encourage local student chapters to talk up the NMRT activities. Require NMRT leaders and officers to host get-togethers for potential members. Ask schools to forward NMRT announcements to students and alumni.

Participant Suggestion

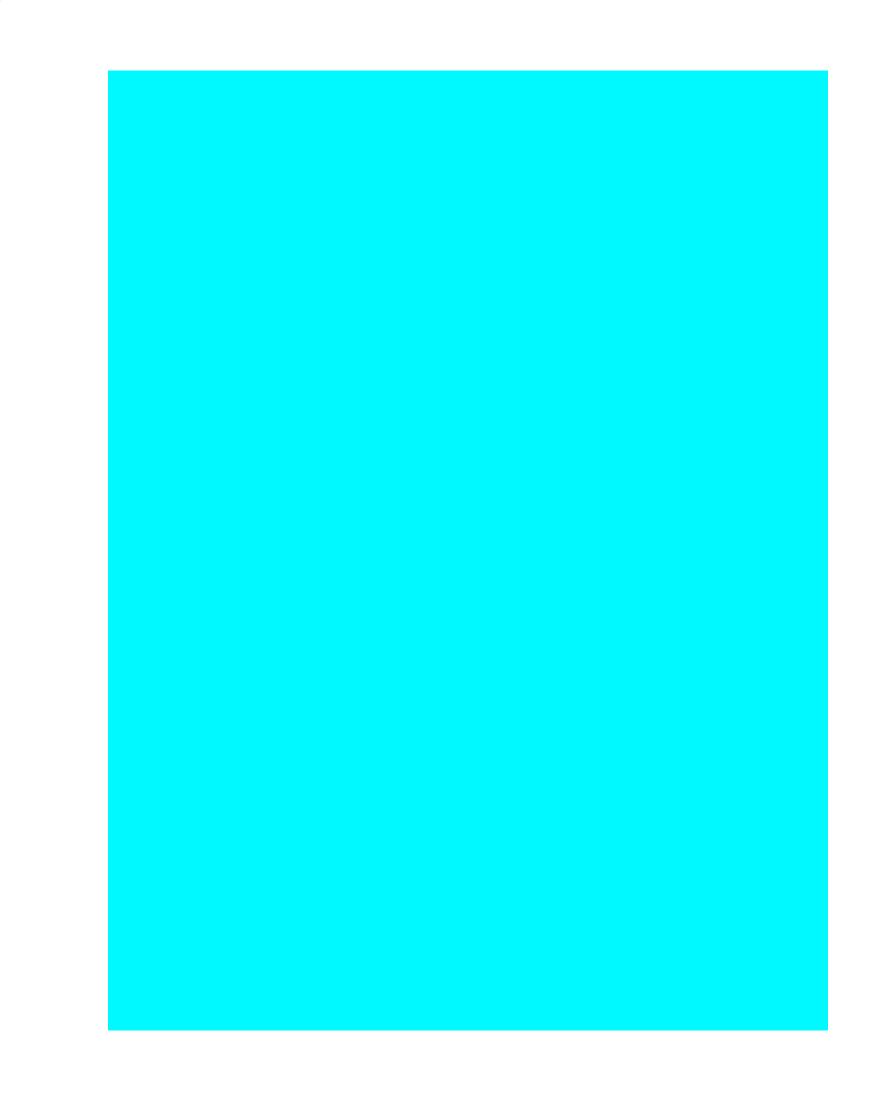

Improved marketing

Listservs

Social Media

Professional Events

THE FUTURE

Use the tablet to view new ideas. E.g. an email template, a social media plan, & website redesign.

Team Members:

John Mack Freeman Rachel W. Gammons Amanda L. Goodman Alexandra Janvey Cynthia Mari Orozco

View the report and presentation at: http://bit.ly/thisreportisawesome