

Medicaid Disease Management Program data: Complete reference list

Title of Dissertation:           THE EFFECT OF MEDICAID DISEASE MAN-AGEMENT PROGRAMS ON MEDICAID EX-PENDITURES

By:                                 Keith Kranker
  Doctor of Philosophy, 2011

Directed By:                    Professor Mark Duggan
  Department of Economics

Data on Medicaid Disease Management (DM) programs was collected for the above-referenced dissertation research. In particular, the empirical research in Chapter 2 of the dissertation relies on this data (merged with national survey data). The descriptive discussion on the rise of DM programs (chapters 1 and 2) is based on this data.

The methodology for collecting the data is discussed in Appendix A of the dissertation. This document provides a complete list of references that, for sake of brevity, were excluded from the reference list in the dissertation.

To reiterate, information on Medicaid DM programs was collected from a variety of sources. Although I am not aware of any references that describe all Medicaid DM programs that have been implemented, a number of sources discuss one or more Medicaid DM programs. The starting point for my research was the intersection of all programs discussed in the documents listed under the “Main ” heading (page 2).

In addition, these documents were supplemented with other information, gleaned state-by-state, from over 250 sources. These include state Medicaid offices and websites (and other government agencies), program status updates and evaluations, DMO companies, press releases or newspaper articles, personal communication with relevant parties, etc. Sources are listed, by state, under the “State-specific ” heading (beginning on page 6).

For each state, I also used the state’s Medicaid program website, which often included web pages on DM programs (when present) and other aspects of the Medicaid program (website addresses on page 31). Finally, I also used documents from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (www.cms.gov), such the list of Waiver programs and other initiatives.
