FINDING THE SWEET SPOT
COMMUNICATION, COLLABORATION AND ARCHIVES

HERSHEY, PENNSYLVANIA
MARAC SPRING 2018 | APRIL 11-14, 2018
WELCOME TO HERSHEY!

Join your colleagues and friends at the Hershey Lodge in beautiful central Pennsylvania for MARAC’s spring conference April 11-14, 2018. Come explore the challenges and opportunities in undertaking collaborative projects, the role of the archives in communities, public/private partnerships, working with non-professionals, crowdsourcing projects, and much more.

Our conference hotel, the Hershey Lodge, provides ample opportunity to experience fine dining, entertainment, and all things sweet. With your accommodations, you will receive free admission to the beautiful Hershey Gardens with its year-round butterfly atrium as well as The Hershey Story Museum where you can make your own chocolate bar. Hersheypark will also be open April 14-15 and the Hershey Lodge offers preferred pricing and a free shuttle for Lodge guests. During your stay in Hershey, be sure to take advantage of the many historical, family-friendly sites located nearby. No matter your age or interests, Hershey is sure to be a sweet destination!

Program highlights include Friday morning’s plenary speaker, Trevor Owens, Head of Digital Content Management for Library Services at the Library of Congress. Owens’ talk will provide examples of how archivists are rising to the challenge and practical guidance for both digital preservation beginners and experts. Donald Kraybill, Distinguished College Professor and Senior Fellow Emeritus of the Young Center for Anabaptist and Pietist Studies at Elizabethtown College, will provide the luncheon presentation. Located just a few miles south of Hershey, Lancaster County is the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, the world’s oldest and largest Amish community. As a renowned expert on the Amish community, Professor Kraybill will discuss how journalists and prosecutors alike have come to him over the years for explanations about both the virtues and vices of Amish culture.
Breakout-sessions for the conference focus squarely on the theme of community and collaboration. There are a number of excellent presentations and discussion panels that tap into the broad experience of our MARAC members. Moreover, four “potpourri” panel presentations will bring you variations on our conference theme, while an additional four “birds-of-a-feather” (BOF) discussions will feature lively, facilitated discussions between presenters and session attendees. Finally, all conference attendees will be invited to view and discuss the posters submitted by MARAC members from throughout the region. For those interested in developing new proficiencies, four workshops will be offered, all aimed at training participants in specific archival skills such as dating 19th-century photographs, audiovisual processing, collections care, and privacy for born digital collections. Thursday will also feature an all-day business archives forum.

The Hershey meeting offers many exciting Thursday tour opportunities in the surrounding area. Join MARAC golf enthusiasts for a special opportunity to play the Historic East Course at the Hershey Country Club. Walking tours will be available for both Hershey and nearby Harrisburg. On the Hershey tour, see historical, architectural and scenic highlights of Milton Hershey’s world-famous company town. The Harrisburg tour will highlight expanses of the Susquehanna Riverfront, Front Street Mansions, quaint historic district streetscapes, architectural landmarks of the Capitol Complex and some of the 20 outdoor murals completed in 2017. Another local Hershey option will be the behind-the-scenes tour of The Hershey Story Museum where you can explore the museum’s collections storage facility and discover some rarely seen artifacts. For those willing to venture a little further afield, all aboard for a 45-minute ride through the picturesque Lancaster County countryside on the Strasburg Rail Road’s vintage steam locomotive and tour of the Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania.

The Friday night reception will be held at the Antique Automobile Club of America Museum, a proud affiliate of the Smithsonian Institution, dedicated to the preservation and presentation of vintage automobiles and their vast history. This modern facility features 85-100 cars on display, as well as a floor full of buses, more than 30 motorcycles, motorbikes, and scooters. While enjoying delicious hors d’oeuvres and beverages, reception attendees and their guests can wine and dine on a cross-country journey through time from Battery Park, New York in the early 1890s, to San Francisco’s Golden Gate Bridge in the 1980s.

Consider staying in the area through Saturday to take the full tour of the Antique Auto Museum or join MARAC and JAL (John LeGloahec) tours for the Hershey Bears vs. Bridgeport Sound Tigers hockey game at Giant Arena. Bring your family to enjoy the many opportunities to explore Hershey and central PA on your own. Other fun options include: Springtime in the Park at Hersheypark, Hershey Gardens and Indoor Butterfly Atrium, and Indian Echo Caverns.

Be sure to attend the Saturday morning business meeting (purchase of breakfast is not required). MARAC is working through several key issues, including a developing an action plan for supporting diversity and inclusion initiatives. Make your voice heard and stay knowledgeable about your organization.

The Spring 2018 MARAC meeting at Hershey is sure to engage and inspire you. We hope you enjoy your time in the “Sweetest Place on Earth!” and find the sweet spot in your archives, community, and collaborations!

FRIDAY, APRIL 13

PLENARY
START TODAY: DIGITAL STEWARDSHIP COMMUNITIES AND COLLABORATIONS
9–10 a.m.

Trevor Owens, Head of Digital Content Management for Library Services, Library of Congress

The increasingly digital records of our communities and our organizations require all of us to become digital stewardship and digital preservation practitioners. The challenge seems daunting but the good news is we don’t have to do it alone. A distributed network of practitioners and learners across the country are increasingly finding ways to learn together and share and pool their resources to tackle these challenges and provide enduring access to our digital heritage. Owens’ talk will provide examples of how archivists are rising to the challenge and practical guidance for both digital preservation beginners and experts.

A librarian, researcher, policy maker, and educator working on digital infrastructure for libraries, Trevor Owens currently serves as the inaugural Head of Digital Content Management for Library Services at the Library of Congress. In addition, he teaches graduate seminars in digital history for American University’s History Department and graduate seminars and digital preservation for the University of Maryland’s College of Information, where he is also a Research Affiliate with the Digital Curation Innovation Center. Owens is the author of three books, the most recent of which, The Theory and Craft of Digital Preservation, is in press with Johns Hopkins University Press. In 2014 the Society for American Archivists granted him the Archival Innovator Award, presented annually to recognize the archivist, repository, or organization that best exemplifies the “ability to think outside the professional norm.”

LUNCHEON
THE GOOD AMISH AND THE BAD: FROM FORGIVENESS AT NICKEL MINES TO HATE CRIMES IN OHIO
11:45 a.m.–1:15 p.m.

Donald Kraybill, Distinguished College Professor and Senior Fellow Emeritus, Young Center for Anabaptist and Pietist Studies at Elizabethtown College

Located just a few miles east of Hershey, Lancaster County is the heart of the “Pennsylvania Dutch Country,” the world’s oldest and largest Amish community. When, in 2006, a non-Amish neighbor shot ten young girls and then killed himself in a one-room Amish school in Lancaster County, the local Amish community quickly and publicly forgave the perpetrator. Several years later in 2011, a renegade Amish group in Ohio was the first group charged with federal hate crimes against other members of their own religious community. How can such starkly different behaviors be squared in a community rooted in very particular religious traditions? As a renowned expert on the Amish community, Professor Kraybill will discuss how journalists and prosecutors alike have come to him over the years for explanations about this seemingly contradictory behavior, and how these events illustrate both the virtues and vices of Amish culture.

Donald B. Kraybill is Distinguished College Professor and Senior Fellow Emeritus in the Young Center for Anabaptist and Pietist Studies at Elizabethtown College (PA). Internationally recognized for his scholarship on Anabaptist groups, Kraybill is the author, coauthor, or editor of some thirty books and dozens of professional articles. Kraybill’s research and commentary on Anabaptist groups is often featured in magazines, newspapers, radio, television, and online. Kraybill’s books include The Riddle of Amish Culture and Renegade Amish: Beard Cuttings, Hate Crimes, and the Trial of the Bergholz Barbers. He co-authored the award-winning, Amish Grace: How Forgiveness Transcended Tragedy and The Amish (a companion to the two-hour PBS film by the same title). His centennial history of Eastern Mennonite University was published by Penn State in 2017.

The reception is generously sponsored by The Hershey Company.

Located at 161 Museum Dr. in Hershey, the AACA Museum is just a short 4.5-mile trip away from the Hershey Lodge. Shuttles will be provided, but parking is free if you would like to drive yourself.

The AACA Museum will serve as the venue for the Friday evening reception, circa 2010. Courtesy of the AACA Museum

The luncheon is sponsored in part by Temple University Libraries.
Registration and pre-payment required. Transportation is not provided unless otherwise noted. Carpool/rideshare information will be made available.

W1. DATING 19TH CENTURY PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHS

Half Day Workshop: 9 a.m.—12:30 p.m.
Registration Minimum: 10   Registration Maximum: 25
Cost: $45
Instructor: Gary Saretzky, Monmouth County Archives

Old portrait photographs are often found without dates, but trained archivists can frequently estimate dates fairly precisely based on the type of photograph; sitter’s identity and clothing; physical characteristics of the photo, including mounting styles and mount information; photographer; and other factors. The date may be needed by researchers, but it is also helpful for cataloging and to confirm identification of the subject. In this half-day workshop, the instructor will explain major types of 19th century photographic processes used for portraiture, indicate when they were popular, and teach techniques for dating photographs. Participants will learn how to use a micrometer to measure mounting board thickness. Slide presentations with several hundred examples will show dated cartes-de-visite, cabinet cards, and ferrotypes to help participants learn how the look of such images and their mounts evolved between the 1850s and 1900. The instructor will also bring vintage examples of the various processes and discuss how to identify and date them. After the lecture, participants will break up into pairs and try to date original examples using the micrometer and handouts with dating tips. The instructor will provide published references helpful for dating photographs and a bibliography of relevant publications and websites. Although not the main focus, the instructor will also provide guidance on the preservation of 19th-century photographs. Participants may bring examples from their own collections for analysis and discussion.

W2. AUDIOVISUAL PROCESSING WORKSHOP

Full Day Workshop: 9 a.m.—4 p.m.
Registration Minimum: 10   Registration Maximum: 25
Cost: $90
Instructor: Siobhan Hagan, Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive (MARMIA)

Many archivists are in need of knowledge and hands-on experience to initiate preservation of audiovisual items at their current or future places of work. This workshop will teach efficient processing of audiovisual collections in order for professionals to immediately implement these skills at their archive. Attendees will leave the workshop able to identify audiovisual formats, to process collections with AV materials quickly, to decide on processing policies depending on several factors, to create a basic conditions assessment and be able to conduct proper preservation storage and (re)housing for these items.

W3. COLLECTIONS CARE TRAINING: TECHNIQUES AND MATERIALS FOR HANDLING AND TRANSPORT OF PAPER

Full Day Workshop: 9 a.m.—4 p.m.
Registration Minimum: 10   Registration Maximum: 25
Cost: $90
Instructor: Stephenie Schwartz Bailey, Conservation Center For Art & Historic Artifacts

Care for collections is an important part of archival work. This workshop will delve into best practices for the safe handling of paper artifacts, including books and oversized objects, and basic design and labeling of protective enclosures for transport. Discussion will include how to prepare work areas, best practices for moving various types of artifacts, selecting preservation quality supplies and tools, and identifying potential conservation concerns. Participants will gain hands-on experience and have an opportunity to sample materials.

W4. DATA PRIVACY FOR BORN-DIGITAL COLLECTIONS

Half Day Workshop: 1–4 p.m.
Registration Minimum: 10   Registration Maximum: 25
Cost: $45
Instructor: Alexis Antracoli, Princeton University

This workshop will provide participants with an opportunity to learn about data privacy issues in archival collections with a focus on born-digital materials. Attendees will learn about the range of data that presents privacy concerns (e.g. social security numbers, financial information, directory information), relevant laws (e.g. FERPA, HIPAA), and the role of institutional policy in shaping how archivists should handle sensitive data in their collections. Participants will have the opportunity to learn about and use several software tools that can assist with identifying sensitive data both before and after it arrives at the archives, will engage with case studies about how to handle sensitive data, and will be ready to start thinking about policy solutions to data privacy issues. The workshop is geared towards those with little to no prior experience or knowledge about data privacy, but with at least some hands-on experience with born-digital materials.
S1. ARCHIVES AND ADVOCACY: PRESERVING PENNSYLVANIA’S DISABILITY HISTORY
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s1

From the founding of the nation’s first mental hospital to recent closings and consolidations of state mental institutions, Pennsylvania has a long and complicated history of addressing disability. The state currently has many initiatives including identifying and preserving institutional records and the experiences of advocates and self-advocates. The Pennsylvania State Archives, universities, and state and local advocacy groups and organizations are engaged in a collaborative effort to preserve this documentary history. In this session, a panel of leading practitioners in the state will discuss recent efforts to collaborate and the successes and challenges that have resulted.

S2. YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN SILENT: TRUE RIGHTS STATEMENT CONFESSIONS - BOF
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s2

Following the launch of RightsStatements.org, many Digital Public Library of America Hubs have started discussions about standardizing rights statements for digital collections. This BOF session will bring together various experts from mid-Atlantic DPLA Hubs who have implemented standardized rights statements for digital collections, worked on education and training for constituent institutions, or have completed rights statements analyses. The session will help build collective awareness and skills among digital collections managers or interested archivists for implementing standardized rights statements in an open and understanding space. Participants are welcome and encouraged to bring rights statements for review, questions, or confessions. They can share tales of heartbreak, confusion, and woe and we will help troubleshoot and commiserate.

S3. ARCHIVES AND INTERNS: COLLABORATION BETWEEN A UNIVERSITY AND A LOCAL HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s3

The archives of local historical societies contain a wealth of documents and artifacts, though they are often inaccessible to members and researchers because of the lack of volunteers to process them. For over a decade the Kutztown Area Historical Society (KAHS) and the Department of History at Kutztown University have collaborated to help overcome this problem. Students serve as interns, gaining valuable hands-on experience, while the KAHS gets much needed help in organizing its holdings. Projects have included scanning the KAHS’s postcard collection and its annual journal, creating an abstract of articles, and transcription of the diaries of a nineteenth-century resident that span over forty years. This collaboration has helped strengthen town and gown relations and can serve as a model for similar organizations.

Chair: Michael P. Gabriel, Kutztown University
Speakers: Michael P. Gabriel; Carly Plesic; Matthew Harris Kutztown University
Brendan Strasser, Kutztown Area Historical Society
Sheila Joy, United Lutheran Seminary

S4. IT TAKES A VILLAGE: PRESERVING AUDIOVISUAL MATERIALS IN THE MID-ATLANTIC
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s4

This panel will discuss the mission, work, and collaborative projects of three organizations dedicated to the preservation of moving images and recorded sounds: The Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive (MARMIA), the XFR Collective, and the Association of Moving Image Archivists’ (AMIA) Community Archiving Workshop. Siobhan Hagan will discuss MARMIA’s work and a collaborative transfer event held in Baltimore in January of 2017. A representative from the XFR Collective will discuss the New York City-based collective’s goal of demystifying the process of audiovisual archival practice and supporting community groups, particularly a recently developed partnership with the Metropolitan New York Library Council (METRO). Sandra Yates will share the outcomes of AMIA’s 2016 Community Archiving Workshop and the resources available to hold your own Community Archiving Workshop!

Chair: Siobhan Hagan, Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive
Speakers: Siobhan Hagan, Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive
Representative from the XFR Collective
Sandra Yates, Community Archiving Workshop

S5. ENGAGING THE CAMPUS: EXPLORING A MEDLEY OF ARCHIVAL RELATIONSHIPS – POTPOURRI
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s5

On-campus collaboration occurs across the archival spectrum, and this session will highlight opportunities for potential conflict and disagreement as well as success and will provide examples of how these might be addressed in an effective partnership. Speakers will address issues throughout the archival lifecycle, beginning with pre-donation processing and the efforts taken at New York University to collaborate with its donors, to the resolution of potentially conflicting preservation priorities at Syracuse University, to working with campus partners to better facilitate researchers at the University of Pittsburgh, and creating innovative pop-up exhibits that promote the campus community and shared history at Mount St. Mary’s University. This medley of case studies belies the notion of archivists working in isolation and provides examples of outreach at many different levels.

Chair: Ashley Taylor, University of Pittsburgh
Speakers: Sebastian Modrow; Andrew Saluti, Syracuse University
Weatherly Stephan; Nicholas Martin, New York University
Jennifer Needham; David Grinnell, University of Pittsburgh
Jessica Whitmore, Mount St. Mary’s University
S6. CHESTER MADE: BUILDING THE BIOGRAPHY OF A BLOCK WITH ARTISTS, STUDENTS AND RESIDENTS
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s6

In Chester, PA, Widener University historians and students are collaborating with local artists and residents to explore the history of the downtown at nearby county archives as galleries, an arts center, coffee shops, and lofts are emerging from vacant buildings. Photography equipment, barbershop chairs, and business ledgers are just some of the artifacts that artists have unearthed and tell part of the story of the businesses that thrived there. Residents have many stories to tell too about protests that occurred over civil rights and desegregation of the city schools from 1963 to 1966. Learn more about this project and how archives are playing a vital role in placemaking and collaboratively bringing together historians, students, artists, and residents to research, interpret, and bring history to life through the arts.

Chair: Rachel Batch, Widener University
Speakers: Laurie Zierer, Pennsylvania Humanities Council
Richard Hopkins, Widener University
Devon Walls, MJ Freed Theater & The Artist Warehouse
Margaret Johnson, Delaware County Historical Society
Twyla Simpkins, Yes We Can Achievement & Cultural Center
Christina Mulford; Nick Jackson, Widener University (students)

S7. FROM COEXISTENCE TO COLLABORATION: WHEN ARCHIVES COME TOGETHER – WORKSHOP SESSION
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s7

Widener University Library houses both the University Archives and Sexuality Archives. Speakers in this session will demonstrate how these two archives collaborate to create a rich archival environment that benefits both archives, the Library, and the University. They will discuss how they developed their unique collaboration and created a dynamic digital exhibit which highlights the important intersections between Widener and the larger world in terms of feminism, sexuality, and LGBT rights. Participants will be asked to examine artifacts from each collection and deconstruct their function as cultural indicators of the time in which they were created—an activity that will encourage participants to consider strategies for collaborating with other archives and finding unique intersections of their own.

Chairs/Speakers: Jill Borin; Molly Wolf, Wiedener University

S8. AT COLLABORATION’S END, OR, WHAT TO DO WHEN YOUR RISK MANAGEMENT PLAN IS OVERWHELMED
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s8

In 2015, The Mariners’ Museum Library at Christopher Newport University was awarded a three-year Hidden Collections grant from the Council for Library and Information Resources to catalog 48,000 negatives held in cold storage; a supporting project digitized the negatives. The project’s risk assessment included normal risks, such as staff turnover and exceeding digital storage capacity, but it failed to include additional risks that seemed both remote and horrible to contemplate—and those horrible things eventually happened. The risk management plan helped, but was rapidly overwhelmed. Presenters in the session will talk about how they have had to mitigate risks that came to pass without the guidance of forethought normally found in the risk management plan.

Chair: Jay Moore, The Mariners’ Museum and Park
Speakers: Marc Marsocci; Jay Moore; Sarah Puckitt Scruggs, The Mariners’ Museum and Park

S9. SERVING ARCHIVAL COMMUNITIES: REGIONAL PROGRAMS IN THE MARAC REGION
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s9

Within the Mid-Atlantic states, there are a rich variety of collaborative regional services offering education and networking opportunities for archival collections and the individuals who work with them. Through surveys, assessments, workshops, mentorship, and more, these programs empower both archivists and non-archivists to better care for their collections. This session will focus on these services and will feature speakers from programs, past and present, which have supported regional education and assessment. Panelists will focus on the successes and challenges of working with community archives, non-archivists, special collections, small institutions, and limited resources, as well as thoughts on how these regional services can expand moving forward.

Chair: Anastasia Matijkiw, Documentary Heritage and Preservation Services for New York
Speakers: Dyani Feige; Samantha Forsko Conservation Center for Art & Historic Artifacts
Jack McCarthy, Historical Society of Pennsylvania
Frederic Pachman, Caucus Archival Projects Evaluation Service (MARAC New Jersey Caucus)
S10. DISPARATE DIGITAL DESIGNS: USING VIRTUAL SPACES TO BUILD ARCHIVAL CAPACITY
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s10

Crowdsourcing reference? Students describing students? Processing photographs at scale? Collaborative project management? Speakers in this session will discuss using a variety of tools and digital spaces to innovate how the traditional work of the archives gets done. While collaborative digital project management is happening at the University of Maryland, George Mason University coordinated the scanning and description of more than 50,000 photographs. At Towson University, high-school students are brought into the archives to become the next generation of citizen archivists while the National Archives and Records Administration uses crowdsourcing to power its History Hub.

Chair: Amber Forrester, National Archives and Records Administration

Speakers: Amber Forrester; Kelly Osborn, National Archives and Records Administration
Ashley Todd-Diaz; Felicity Knox; Adam Zukowski, Towson University
Brittney Falter; Amanda Brent, George Mason University
Robin Pike, University of Maryland

S11. NOT JUST ANOTHER BUNCH OF PAPERS
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s11

Notable among American railroad company records for its completeness, the Fall Brook Coal and Railroad Companies Archives has survived intact for more than a hundred years and contains everything from minutes of Board Meetings to lowly freight shipment vouchers. Now at the Pennsylvania State Archives, the records comprise over 345 cubic feet, much of it unprocessed. Its research potential for scholars and as a teaching tool for public history is only now coming to light. The session discusses how in 2014 the State Archives and Kutztown University collaborated to process a portion of these records and make them accessible using the University’s public history students—a win-win situation. Among other activities, students unfolded, cleaned, and placed into acid-free housing records that had been untouched since their arrival at the Archives 80 years ago.

Chair: Linda Ries, Pennsylvania Historical Association (retired)

Speakers: Brett Reigh, Pennsylvania State Archives
Andrew Arnold; Carolyn Wasser; Michael Gabriel, Kutztown University

S12. “SING OUT, LOUISE! SING OUT!”: THE ARCHIVIST AND EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s12

Like it or not, if you’re an archivist, you need to be an effective communicator: to successfully engage with donors by explaining what we do and why our institutions are important; to better introduce our researchers to our reading room processes and procedures by articulating not just the what but the how and the why to strangers; to broaden our public engagement through events, workshops, and tours, by knowing how to structure a presentation and deliver it effectively; to more easily land a job by being able to communicate with confidence in an interview. This panel of archives professionals experienced in public speaking will provide tips and best practices for becoming the confident and effective communicator you’ve always wanted to be. Attendees are encouraged to discuss their own experiences, phobias, and hang-ups about public speaking and will get advice from the panelists on how to improve.

Chair: Bob Clark, Rockefeller Archive Center

Speakers: Kerri Anne Burke, Citigroup
Celia Hartmann, Metropolitan Museum of Art
Nicole Milano, Archives of the American Field Service and AFS Intercultural Programs
S13. DOCUMENTING COMMUNITIES AND MOVEMENTS IN REAL TIME
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s13

By now, there is consensus within the archival community that our collecting practices must change to keep up with the times. No longer can we wait for photographs, diaries, and films to emerge from the attics and closets of individuals and organizations; immediate interventions are necessary to preserve digital media before it disappears into the void. But how do we go about documentation in real time? What ethical and technical hurdles do we confront? How do we partner with communities to make sure our efforts align with their interests? In this panel, archivists with diverse experiences will explore topics such as developing tools to archive social media, documenting the ever-changing borough of Queens, NY, tenant organizing in New York City, and life aboard a maritime training vessel.

Chair: Annie Tummino, SUNY Maritime College
Speakers: Natalie Milbrodt, Queens Library
Alexandra Dolan-Mescal, Documenting the Now
Maggie Schreiner, Interference Archive

S15. BREATH OF LIFE: COLLABORATING WITH NATIVE RESEARCHERS ACROSS THE SMITHSONIAN
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s15

This panel will discuss the various ways the Smithsonian Institution collaborates with Native American researchers to make archival materials related to their communities more easily discoverable and usable. Panelists from the National Museum of the American Indian, the National Anthropological Archives, and the Recovering Voices Program will talk about the most recent Breath of Life Archival Institute for Indigenous Languages as well as ongoing collaborative projects at their individual repositories. Panelists will lead a discussion on the challenges and successes of working collaboratively across archival units and will open the floor to questions regarding the protocols on working with Native American materials.

Chair: Rachel Menyuk, National Museum of the American Indian, Smithsonian Institution
Speakers: Caitlin Haynes, National Anthropological Archives, Smithsonian Institution
Judith Andrews, Recovering Voices, Smithsonian Institution
Nathan Sowry, National Museum of the American Indian, Smithsonian Institution

S14. FINDING COLLABORATION IN A HOPELESS PLACE: LAUNCHING PASTIME AT THE NATIONAL BASEBALL HALL OF FAME
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s14

In 2015, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum decided to consolidate its library, archives, and museum databases into a single DAMS and kickstart a digitization project as part of the migration. In this presentation, representatives from three departments at the Hall of Fame will give a brief background on the project and discuss the challenges and opportunities that came with this interdepartmental collaboration. Issues covered will include developing new workflows, dealing with resistant coworkers, establishing best practices, and communication obstacles. Although the Hall of Fame’s project will be the case study through which the issues are discussed, the focus of the presentation will be how other institutions can learn from these experiences.

Chair: Kelli Bogan, National Baseball Hall of Fame
Speakers: Kelli Bogan; Jamie Brinkman; Cassidy Lent; National Baseball Hall of Fame

S16. COLLABORATING WITH TEACHERS: BRINGING STUDENTS AND ARCHIVES TOGETHER
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s16

Recent archival conferences have featured numerous presentations encouraging archivists to work with educators from the PreK-12 and college undergraduate community. But how do you support this kind of program as a solo archivist, or in a school district where the focus is helping students pass standardized tests, or in school districts with diverse populations? See how school archivists and education specialists collaborate with teachers and students to bring archival materials into the PreK-12 classroom and become integral parts of the curriculum. Speakers will show sample lesson plans and projects that can serve as models for archivists interested in working with teachers.

Chair: Jacqueline Haun, The Lawrenceville School
Speakers: Danna Bell, Library of Congress
Cassandra Keith, Episcopal Academy
Johanna Schein, Gilman School
S17. IF YOU PLAN IT, THEY WILL COME: ARCHIVES MONTH EVENT INCUBATOR - BOF
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s17

Archives Month Philly (AMP) is a month-long city-wide festival that focuses on educating the wider community about local archives through public programming and exhibitions. Since 2013, AMP has held over 100 events at more than 60 participating institutions in the Philadelphia area. Join AMP’s lead organizers to brainstorm creative ideas and start planning your own event for Archives Month this October! Speakers will share suggestions and words of caution for planning individual events or coordinating multi-institutional partnerships. Session attendees will then break into small groups based on institution type or other affinity, including colleges and universities, historical societies, museums, and special interest libraries. With an AMP organizer as facilitator, attendees will workshop event ideas for their own institution or region, from coming up with a concept, through planning and publicity, to day-of logistics.

Chair: Hillary Kativa, Science History Institute
Speakers: Celia Caut-Ellenbogen, Swarthmore College
Kelsey Duinkerken, Thomas Jefferson University
Bayard Miller, American Philosophical Society

S18. RADICAL ROLE REINVENTION: NEW DIRECTIONS FOR SPECIAL COLLECTIONS COLLABORATION
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s18

The special collections field has traditionally stuck to tried and true approaches to building, sustaining, and providing access to materials. Are these approaches effective ways to respond to the needs of the communities we serve and the communities we document? How can we expand our repertoire to include non-traditional skills and collaborations? This panel will showcase examples of radical collaboration and reimaging of the special collections playbook: initiating collaborations between departments and disciplines, pushing ourselves out of our comfort zones, and designing services, policies, and instructional offerings to enhance and broaden what we provide to our readers and communities. Panelists will discuss a collaborative data-analysis approach to collection development and public services, a more broadly-realized approach to all activities contained in the spectrum of reader services, and outreach to the STEM fields.

Chair: Jennifer Kinniff, Johns Hopkins University
Speakers: Rebecca Bramlett, George Mason University
Jennifer King; Leah Richardson, George Washington University
Melanie Meyers, The Center for Jewish History

S19. FINDING THE SWEET SPOT IN THE "CHOCOLATE CITY:" BLACK MUSIC AND DANCE COMMUNITIES, COLLABORATION, AND THE ARCHIVES IN WASHINGTON, DC
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s19

The Black Regional Archives Dance Archives was established to preserve the tangible records of regional dance which reflects the African Diasporic experience inclusive of individuals, companies and organizations. The DC Public Library Special Collections Department’s Go-Go Music Archive comprises a significant component of the DC Music Archive, a project initiative established in 2013 to collect, preserve, and document various genres of music in the capital city. This session will focus on efforts to document and preserve Black dance and Go-Go music to provide a view into these dynamic and rich, but often under-documented communities. It will also address how these communities impact the larger history of dance and music and will highlight outreach efforts to launch both archives and the challenges of working within the communities.

Chair: Chris Hartten, Library of Congress
Speakers: Lela J. Sewell-Williams, International Association of Blacks in Dance
Derek Gray, DC Public Library
In this session, speakers from three institutions explore the use of art and image to facilitate local involvement in researching, preserving, and promoting hidden pieces of history. The Shenandoah Tapestry Project of the Stewart Bell Jr. Archives at the Handley Regional Library brings together residents of all ages to create a needlework tapestry that narrates regional history. Collaboration between the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and African-American churches, school reunion groups, and local historians has yielded identifications and historical context for images in a photograph collection which documents the African American community in Williamsburg between the 1930s and 1950s. Public art has also been a tool used in a partnership between the Race & Racism Project at the University of Richmond and Untold RVA to bring marginalized and silenced city histories to light.

Chair: Marianne Martin, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation
Speakers: Lorna Loring; Rebecca Ebert, Handley Regional Library
Irina Rogova, University of Richmond
Marianne Martin, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation
Amy Speckart, Rare Book School at the University of Virginia

Robert J. Sullivan Jr. served the Harrisonburg, VA community for more than two decades as its city planner and was beloved for his dedication as “unofficial historian” and community advocate. This panel discussion will draw on a project involving the Robert J. Sullivan Jr. Papers at James Madison University, tracing the progress of this multi-format collection from initial appraisal to programming and outreach. Panel members will reflect on the challenges and opportunities in undertaking a collaborative community project, managing the priorities and expectations of numerous stakeholders and their respective constituents, building community connections by documenting and performing outreach, outsourcing digitization and adding the content to an institutional repository, and how this case study in community collaboration successfully brought together different communities of researchers.

S22. DESIGNING A LEGACY: COLLABORATIVE DONOR RELATIONS WITH THE LIVING DONOR - BOF
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s22

When working with the papers of living individuals, donor relations can present particular issues and opportunities. In this birds-of-a-feather session, discussion leaders will share short case studies and encourage participants to discuss solutions to a variety of issues, including setting appropriate expectations for processing and digitization time, managing additional accessions, making effective use of meetings with the living donor or creator, dealing with the expectations of family members, responding to requests for exhibits and special events, and handling sensitive and restricted materials. Archivists from a variety of institution sizes and types should walk away from this session with workable and practical ideas.

Chairs/Speakers: Rachel Grove Rohrbaugh, Elizabethtown College
Lynda Kachurek, University of Richmond

Tweet with #maracspring18, #s23

The Rockefeller Archive Center is working to expand educational outreach to the K-12 community and a new partnership was formed by working with a 5th-grade class on a long-term archival project. An education team that consists of archivists, teachers, parents, and students provided a combination of skills that enabled the class to learn the value of primary sources and view archives as a resource. Students learned how to create research questions, utilize primary sources, and demonstrate their knowledge about their topic areas in both the school and archives settings.

S24. FROM THE TRENCHES: CROSS-CAMPUS DIGITAL HISTORY COLLABORATION
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s24

In September 2015, Gettysburg College launched The First World War Letters of H.J.C. Peirs (www.jackpeirs.org), a digital history initiative built through collaboration between faculty, students, and library staff. The project is founded on amazing primary source material, but with limited financial support and little dedicated staff time. With creativity and hard work, project team members built a website that is maintained by students and enhanced whenever possible with features and commentary from faculty and staff. Members of #TeamPeirs will discuss the evolution of the project, the nature of the collaboration, and the intersection of audiences discovered along the way.

Chair: Amy Lucadamo, Gettysburg College
Speakers: Jenna Fleming; Ian Isherwood; R.C. Miessler; Meghan O’Donnell, Gettysburg College

S25. TO ENGAGE, EXCITE, AND EXPLORE: THE ROLE OF THE COMMUNITY ARCHIVES - POTPOURRI
Tweet with #maracspring18, #s25

What is the role of an archives in identifying and engaging the community it documents? Four very different presentations address this question from a variety of community perspectives. Staff from The Pittsburgh Queer History Project will consider how the process of building an archives with community members can productively complicate linguistic research alongside archival practice. At W.L. Gore & Associates, the archives serves as a place for understanding and interpreting history while working with non-archivists to navigate organizational change. Meanwhile, in a more traditional archival setting at the University of Baltimore, the archivist will discuss the non-traditional users of archives in an educational setting. Within Alcoholics Anonymous, the archives and the culture and community it serves find inherent and internal contradictions.

Chair: Harrison Apple, Pittsburgh Queer History Project
Speakers: Harrison Apple; Dani Stuchel, Pittsburgh Queer History Project
Kevin Brown, W.L. Gore & Associates, Inc.
Fatemah Rezaei, University of Baltimore
