ABSTRACT

Title of Dissertation: INSPIRATION FROM NATURE AS IMPETUS TO THE CREATIVE PROCESS IN MUSIC.
Hyo-Jin, Kim, Doctor of Musical Arts, 2004

Dissertation Directed By: Professor Larissa Dedova, Department of Music

Music is usually not considered representational — it does not sharpen our perception of the external world, nor does it generally imitate it. Neither is music propositional — it does not put forward theories about the world or convey information in the same way as language does. However, when we analyze composers’ musical language and personal inspiration, their music that juxtaposes the inner and outer worlds has meaning not only to interpreters but for listeners as well.

My three recital programs presented here are those works that I believe have a strong connection to the creative process in music, especially dealing with the natural world. Nature has been one of the most inspiring subjects for expressing a composer’s inner mind and feelings. Nature not only describes the elements of reality, it also becomes a stimulus for expressing spiritual qualities and experiences in life.

Music is the ability to express emotions audibly and is the spiritual language of emotion — this feeling of emotion was prevalent in the music of Schumann, Tchaikovsky, and Liszt. These composers’ works contain extra-musical ideas that relate human life with natural settings, yet each composer’s approach is personal and unique. Debussy and Ravel also shared a natural affection for using extra-musical titles, but they are more objective and concerned with sights and sounds to characterize scenes, rather than the more dramatic approach taken by Liszt.

Natural settings such as bird-like songs, the whistle of the wind, and flowing waters have been put to music. Composers have employed techniques of tone painting and coloring to evoke these images through the music. It is the interpreter’s job to understand a composer’s vivid imagination and artistry in order to successfully deliver the composer’s message to the audience.
INSPIRATION FROM NATURE AS IMPETUS TO THE CREATIVE PROCESS

IN MUSIC

By

Hyo-Jin, Kim

Dissertation submitted to the Faculty of the Graduate School of the University of Maryland, College Park, in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Musical Arts

2004

Advisory Committee:

Professor Larissa Dedova, Chair
Professor Sung Won, Lee
Professor Cleveland Page
Professor Santiago Rodriguez
Professor Rita Sloan
© Copyright by
Hyo-Jin, Kim
2004
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Recital I: Nature in Chamber Music

   1.1.1. Allegro
   1.1.2. Allegro molto espressivo
   1.1.3. Scherzo: Allegro molto
   1.1.4. Rondo: Allegro ma non troppo

1.2. Sergei Rachmaninoff (1873-1943)
   1.2.1. Daises, Op. 38, No.3
   1.2.2. Lilacs, Op. 21, No.5
   1.2.3. Spring Waters, Op.24, No.11

1.3. Franz Schubert (1797-1828) Quintet in A Major, D 667 “The Trout”
   1.3.1. Allegro vivace
   1.3.2. Andante
   1.3.3. Scherzo: Presto
   1.3.4. Theme and Variations
   1.3.5. Allegro giusto

Recital II: Nature in Solo Piano

2.1. Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky (1840-1893): The Seasons Op. 37b
   1.3.1. January
   1.3.2. February
   1.3.3. March
   1.3.4. April
   1.3.5. May
   1.3.6. June
   1.3.7. July
   1.3.8. August
   1.3.9. September
   1.3.10. October
   1.3.11. November
   1.3.12. December
2.2. Maurice Ravel (1875-1937): Miroirs

- 2.2.1. Noctuelles
- 2.2.2. Oiseaux Tristes
- 2.2.3. Une Barque sur l’ocean
- 2.2.4. Alborado del Gracioso
- 2.2.5. La Vallee des Cloches

Recital III: Nature in Solo Piano Music

- 3.1.1. Eintritt
- 3.1.2. Jager auf der Lauer
- 3.1.3. Einsame Blumen
- 3.1.4. Verrufene Stelle
- 3.1.5. Freundliche Landschaft
- 3.1.6. Herberge
- 3.1.7. Vogel als Prophet
- 3.1.8. Jagdlied
- 3.1.9. Abschied

3.2. Franz Liszt (1811-1886): Waldesrauschen from Two Concert Etudes

3.3. Claude Debussy (1862-1918): 5 Preludes from Book I & II

- 3.3.1. Brouillards
- 3.3.2. Le vent dans la plaine
- 3.3.3. Les collines d’Anacapri
- 3.3.4. Des pas sur la neige
- 3.3.5. Ce qu’a vu le vent d’Ouest

3.4. Franz Liszt (1811-1886): Vallee d’Obermann from Annees de Pelerinage